TABER WELL
LOOKS GOOD

As much as 250 barrels of heavy crude oil have actually been swabbed in one day from the Standard of British Columbia's test well on the Taber structure it was stated, at the Standard office today.

It was pointed out, however that there is no certainty as yet in respect to what the well will do in steady production.

"We will be able to get more oil out of the oil by pumping than by allowing it to flow," an official of the company said. "On flow it produced at the rate of about 70 barrels a day."

With a production on pump of even 200 barrels a day, Standards Taber well would be the outstanding crude oil producer of Canada, outside of Turner Valley.

Importance Of The Farm

AS WE LOOK FORWARD to another harvest season; when the crops from Canada's farms and gardens are ready to be garnered, we may feel that there is an assurance of plenty of many vital food stuffs for ourselves and others of the United Nations. Canada's contributions from her dairies, farms and orchards are playing a great part in keeping the people of England supplied with food, and grain and other food products are being sent elsewhere to our Allies as they are needed and as there are facilities for transporting them. Our soldiers, sailors and airmen are known to us by their uniforms, and their deeds of gallantry are recorded in the press. This is as it should be, but perhaps too few people give due recognition to the farmer, who also plays an important role in the conflict. For the men in the services, the workers on the home front, and the civilian population, the supply of food is essential, both here and in Britain.

Shortage Of Farm Labor

Young men from Canadian farms have gone in large numbers to the armed services, and to munition factories, with a resulting shortage of farm labor, which leaves many farmers to carry on, attempting to keep up production with real difficulty. Recent figures have shown that the average age of the Canadian farmer is past middle life, yet he is now often obliged to work unduly long hours, and to do the work ordinarily done by several men, due to the shortage of help. In some cases this has led to a farmer feeling forced to curtail production, and dispose of livestock. When we reach the harvest season, this condition may be acute in some parts of the country, but it is to be hoped that sufficient labor will be made available and that in no parts of the country will there be a reduction in the production of vital food stuffs because of lack of workers.

Depending On Canada

In some sections school boys and men from nearby towns have offered to assist with the harvest, and recent government regulations have been aimed at restricting the movement of farm workers to other industries. Canada is one of the few countries left where extensive production of food is possible, and nothing should be allowed to slow down this part of our war effort. In his recent budget speech Finance Minister Liley said: "Excluding wheat which has been in surplus supply since the beginning of the war and has required special measures, the prices of farm products on the average are now about two per cent. above the level of 1926 and prices of animal products are relatively still higher. Farmers are assured of these prices on a wide range of this season's crops and will receive, by government action, higher prices, than those now ruling for wheat, flax, soy beans, sugar beets and apples." The problems of the farmer today, as always, are many, and all possible support should be given him to keep his production at a high level in these critical times.

NONE FOR PETS

Pets, whether kittens or horses, cannot have sugar rationed cards, wartime prices and trade board officials said. These officials told pet owners if they wanted to continue feeding their animals sugar it must come from their own allowance.

TAKING PRECAUTIONS

Just in case London should suffer heavy bombings again, many churches in the city have removed their treasures to places of safekeeping in the country, including pulpits, screens, fonts, altar tables and even organs.

ANOTHER FOR YOUR HEALTH BOOK

"We fish don't swim in the ocean only to be eaten on Friday and what with submarine warfare it is increasingly difficult to stay out of trouble all week," the chairman of a codfish colony said in an underwater interview last week, explaining that numbers of his colleagues were not only willing but eager to win dietary recognition on another day besides Friday.

"Tuesday, for instance," the elderly doyen of the codfish colony said. Comparing the value of fish with other foods, the chairman quoted the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell, famed medical missionary, whose autobiography points out that whales live on seafood and attain flamboyant proportions and unprecedented vitality.

Besides fresh fillets of cod, fish markets now have an extensive variety of other fillets and smoked fish of many kinds; the season for fresh Tasque salmon is in full swing—though there are equally nourishing cheaper kinds of salmon, and fresh frozen fillets that taste just as good as though caught just a few minutes before being introduced to the pan.

HOW TO BUY FISH

Demand absolute freshness—shown by firm flesh which springs back when you touch it. Eyes should be bright. Gills should be fresh in color.

HOW TO KEEP FISH—UNTIL YOU COOK IT

Wrap fresh fish in waxed paper and place in the refrigerator. Keep packaged frozen fish frozen until ready to cook and allow a little more time for cooking.

FISH NEEDS CAREFUL COOKING TO BE GOOD EATING

Fish is always tender. Cook it evenly at low to moderate temperature so it will not dry out and get tough.

Ask your fishman—he knows the best way to cook different kinds of fish—whether to broil, bake, fry or boil them.

DID YOU EVER TRY?

Flaking the left over fish to mix with mashed potato for fish cakes next day?

Cream sauce to serve on toast?

Making a salmon loaf from canned pink salmon which is inexpensive? Dressing up the fish by pouring over it a little melted butter flavored with lemon or Worcestershire sauce?

WHAT DO YOU SERVE WITH FISH?

For the main plate.—Fish, mashed potato and another cooked vegetable. For a crisp lift to the appetite.—Cole slaw; a green salad, raw carrot sticks.

To fill the gaps.—Bread and butter.

To end with that satisfied feeling.—Something light and sweet, or cheese and crackers.

Have you received your referential vitamin chart? Write for it to Dept. W.N.U., Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto. Ask also for a fish recipe booklet giving 100 recipes for fish cookery.

Frequently Die Natural

Those Often Taking Stupendous Hazards And Living Dangerously

Generals are customarily reputed to die in bed, but that has been true in this war than in any other for a long time, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal. Nevertheless, it is true that most men who live adventurous lives, which usually means living dangerously, do not die while carrying out some risky adventure. William Hill, who died at Niagara Falls recently, died from natural causes, yet he had carried out exploits in the Niagara River and the Niagara Rapids, which made his name known far and wide. By the law of averages he ought to have lost his life by drowning long ago. In addition to that he went through the First World War and was wounded at Vimy Ridge.

Bobby Leach, the first man to go over the Falls in a barrel, was killed as the result of slipping on a banana skin on the sidewalk. Blondin, the tight-rope walker, crossed the Falls from shore to shore several times, performing stunts on the way, and died in bed forty years later. We believe, too, that there is an Ontario man still alive who performed the same breath-taking balancing feat.

Considering the number of wild animal acts, very few "lion tamers" are killed in the cages, although almost all are scratched or mauled from time to time. This is the more remarkable because the "tamers" go through their performances at least twice a day, sometimes often, for about eight months of the year. Clyde Beatty, who mixes forty lions and tigers together, says the secret of his immunity is that although he thinks it is possible he may be killed one day, he never enters the cage without saying to himself: "It's not going to be today."

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.
By Alan Maurice Irwin

An ingenious reporter made a tour of gasoline stations a few weeks ago and demonstrated how to buy gasoline without giving up coupons.

He wrote an article that was featured heavily in his paper and a number of readers spoke of it as a fine public service.

To the Enforcement Council of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board the article looked a little different.

They said: "It would have been a fine public service if the bright young man had brought the information to us so we could act on it instead of telling 200,000 readers how to do it!"

A narrow walt? I don't think so. It wasn't that the lawyer feared 200,000 people would break the law. But he did know from experience that a percentage would.

It's something like those "Crime Does Not Pay" movies. You show potential gangsters and racketeers how to do something they hadn't thought of and then point a moral.

Nine times out of ten the person at whom the moral is pointed pays no heed to it. And those who do heed it don't need it!

A somewhat similar situation arose a few months ago when a racket was uncovered in one Canadian city. This one was operated by a man who took fearful chances with a drug which he ministered to young men who wanted to serve in the army.

Reporters who got hold of the story, admirably, from a newspaperman's point of view, wanted to get their teeth into the story and uncover all the details.

When, however, it was explained to them that publication of these details not only might encourage other malefactors to start similar rackets but might also result in deaths from ignorant toying with dangerous drugs the whole story dropped from sight.

This parallel between what we civilians do, and what happens in the Army gets very strong at times, doesn't it?

Yes, I mean just that. The dealer in gasoline who aids a motorist to evade the gasoline regulations is every bit as dangerous to the war effort as the low character who aids draft violators to escape their duty. A number of people with whom I have been talking recently have posed an interesting question. It is "what is the Reserve Army going to do about men in rural districts and smaller centres who want to join but have no Reserve Army unit near them?"

A few days ago I travelled for sometime on the same train as "Sam" Browne, Director-General of the Reserve Army, and that was one of the questions we discussed.

At the moment the Reserve Army is so far below strength in the centres in which units are established that the first job to be done is its recruitment up to strength and the training of men who are handy to the Armoured. Except in towns where there are Armoureds it is hard to find suitable headquarters. Eventually, however, plans will be considered to make reserve training available to as many who are not eligible for active service as possible.

Major-General Brown was on his way to Montreal to address a meeting of the Recruiting Committee that has set itself the task of raising 100,000 men for the Reserve Army in that city.

He said that similar campaigns in Toronto and the West had been very successful and that they had reached their quotas in a very short time.

A funny thing got into the papers a few days ago. It was a story from Ottawa saying that the Army would follow the lead of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board by prohibiting uniform trousers with cuffs and pleats.

What's funny about that? Just this, that it has been in the dress regulations for a long time that officers' slacks must not have cuffs. They never have had pleats.

So, as a matter of fact, the Individual Citizen's Army, in doing without cuffs and pleats on its trousers is following the Army's lead, not the other way round.

Here's a piece of Citizen's Army slang for a change. This is to be found on invitations. It is "B.Y.O.T." or "B.Y.O.C." or "B.Y.O.S." The meaning? Simple! Bring your own tea, or Bring your own coffee, or Bring your own sugar.

And why not? There's a war on! Best of all would be "Come on your own feet," there's plenty of use for gasoline in the Tank Corps.

The explosive pressure in a modern rifle is more than 19 tons per square inch.

Times Are Changing

Hotel In Boston Gets Permit To Erect Blithing Post

Boston granted its first hitching post permit in its 300-year history and simultaneously plans were made for horse troughs at centrally located gasoline stations.

The hitching post—no permit was required in the old days—was to be erected in the old days of the hotel Lennox. After once refusing the hotel, the board of street commissioners commented:

"Changing times, changing conditions, and the revival of hacks and carriages on Boston streets have now made the hotel's proposal feasible and acceptable."

Nearly three and one-half centuries elapsed after the invention of gunpowder before sporting firearms came into general use.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Tamar was allowed to go outside the cabin for a brief taste of fresh air. She caught a glimpse of the plane sheltered by an over-hanging copse of woods low on the slope of the first foothill. They were in a valley, and she knew that Louie must be an expert pilot to have landed so easily. It took precision to drop down in a place like this. The broad strip of withered grass she knew was used for a runway.

Here they were in another world. What more perfect place for a hide-out than this?

Louie tied her in a chair and said, "There's well get here long before noon. She'll take care of you until I get back."

He placed her near the radio and turned it in and said: "Too bad that you can't change your station till I get back. I won't risk your station till I get back. I won't risk your station till I get back."

Tamar heard the plane start and take off and settled down to a morning of monotony, which even fear and dread could not dispel. The radio helped a little, yet the programs seemed usually dull, excepting for the recorded musical numbers.

The room grew cool finally after the logs burned low and there was no way for her to replenish it. Once she thought that something might happen to Louie and she not be found for days occurred to her, and she thought that even this experience with Louie was better than being left here to starve slowly.

Shadwell, her father, Ranny and the Cricket Hill seemed far away. She would not allow herself to remember Christopher. That hurt too much.

Out of the distance came the soft purring of a motorcar. She could see the long low coupe as it swung around the corner of the cabin window. A feminine figure sat at the wheel.

A minute later the cabin door opened and in came Louie's Therese. Tamar stared at her.

"Lo, darling," Louie told me all about you. I don't think he did you justice, though. A gamine smile lit her features, and Tamar almost smiled back.

Therese was small and well rounded and, of course, a blonde. Her curls were glossy and well brushed, following the line of her small head. Her nose was imperceptibly turned up and her brown eyes wide spaced and clear. She didn't look like any conception of a gangster's moll.

"I've read all about you," Therese went on.

Tamar studied her. The green suede set-in belt of the coat hugged her small waist and looped rakishly at the side. Therese untied it and slipped her hat off in the same motion.

tion. She stood in a green jersey dress, good lines cleverly cut. Tamar said: "How do you do, Therese. I'm Tamar Randolph, and I'll appreciate your hospitality. So far I've not really suffered, but I'm beginning to get a little cold."

Therese laid a small gun conspicuously in sight, and said: "We'll take care of that problem right away. Now if you'll promise me that you'll be sweet and give me no trouble, I'll play ball with you."

Strange how those clear, steady eyes could narrow. The girls stared at each other, meaningfully. "Promise?" Therese asked softly. "If you do, then I'll let your hands go, but if you don't I'll have to keep them tied."

"I—I promise. There's no way of getting out of here, and I don't know a thing about guns," Tamar smiled wanly.

"I do. I've killed one man, and although it hurt my conscience a bit at first, not any more. He was trying to do in Louie," she excused the crime with a shrug. "I don't know what that big bozo's got that keeps me that way. But I do love the eggs. He's nobody's business, and I'll look after him."

Therese untied Tamar's hands, but did not touch the cord around her feet. "Louie and I were married three years ago. He's gone a lot, and I don't appreciate his doing this job. But we'll get by—We always have."

She built another fire and set about getting lunch ready. This meal consisted of sandwiches and hot coffee and fruit. Afterward the girls sat and smoked. Tamar was amazed at Therese's philosophy. Where in the world had she soaked all of it up, she wondered.

Tell me about Shadwell. I loved every word that I read about it. I've always wanted to see some place like that. Must be something like the plantations in "Gone With the Wind." There was a book. Rhett Butler. I call Louie that once in a while, and as long as he hasn't read it, I can get by. Do all Southern girls have big blue eyes and coal-black hair?

"Why, no? Of course not! My best friend is as blond as you." Therese's voice had the same quickness and accent of the Easterners she had known and Tamar wished that she might ask her something about herself.

After lunch Therese did a thorough job of going over the cabin. She brought in clean linens from the trunk of her car, and swept and dusted with vigor. The house fairly shone from her efforts. After she was through, she settled down with some handwork and tossed conversational sallies to Tamar.

Therese said she replenished the basket of wood from the pile near the cabin.

"It's getting lots colder. I hope that we don't have bad weather right now. We usually count on several nice weeks here in this little valley."

Therese made no preparations for a man's meal, and Tamar surmised that she was not expecting Louie back tonight. Once she even went so far as to try to fume out some scheme of getting loose from the bonds about her feet and trying to escape during the time when Therese might sleep. But she knew that was hopeless. Her hands would be bound again.

Tamar realized that her note would be used by Louie to identify her to her father so he could collect the ransom. As her thoughts returned to Shadwell once more, she remembered unwillingly how she had longed only yesterday for Christopher Sande. What would he be doing? Was there any effort that he could make in trying to find her?

Ransome Todd was impulsive and hard-hitting. He would perhaps have by this time confronted Major Towne with the accusation of her kidnapping, when he had not had anything to do with it.

How much of the affair did Christopher Sande know previously. Hot tears started to her eyes, and she made a determined effort to not let Therese know that her conviction was true. What good would it do? In stead she answered Therese's questions agreeably and at length.

At dusk Therese put away her handwork, drew the blinds and lit the lamps. The long room became livable and cozy again. "I'll get a bite to eat. You ought to have some vegetables." She went into the kitchen and looked through the shelves. She wished as she worked and Tamar realized that the part she was taking in this crime had very little weight upon her conscience. While they were eating Tamar had a wild desire to laugh. This simply wasn't according to Hoyle. It was perfectly weird, and no one would believe her. Selby Sheridan's eyes would grow big and Dick would smile his slowest and say: "Sure, that you weren't dreaming? Witnesses are so undependable. You didn't see any pink elephants running around in green-and-white shirtwaists?" Ranny would seek out this cabin in the valley and annihilate it—but he wouldn't believe that this sort of thing could take place. It might be an afternoon tea. And Therese was almost as personable as some of the broad and the Rannys bridge club, and twice as pretty as most of them.

Once the radio made a reference to Tamar's kidnapping and Therese edged closer. Static broke into the announcer's words and they could hear only a confused mumble.

Tamar noticed the clock on the mantel, but it did not have been only a news cast, she decided. She thought that Therese seemed nervous after that, though, and tried to get other news broadcasts.

Therese bound her hands after she was in bed. Tamar tried to go to sleep but tossed and turned as best she could with her hands bound. She realized that it was very late when she did drop off, and knew nothing more until the sun flooded the room.

Therese did not look as though she had slept well, and there was a pile of cigarette stubs in the large tray on the smoker. This morning she was more nervous than last night, and did not make much effort to talk. Her lips had lost their pleasant curve and Tamar realized that she was frightened. When Louie returned, her bravado would come back, but now, she was only a woman with something to worry about.

The morning was unbearably long. Several times Tamar knew that Therese was listening intently and thought that her head was lifted toward the sky. Evidently she was expecting Louie to come back in the plane.

About noon Therese heated the oven in the wood range in the kitchen and prepared to broil a cooked ham. She worked at it expertly, peeling off the outer skin, rubbing it with brown sugar and spices and pouring pineapple juice about it. She washed potatoes and put them in the oven to bake. Tamar asked her once if she would like some help, but Therese merely shook her head.

Therese set the table and made the last of the dinner preparations. She smoked incessantly, and kept going to the windows and looking out. After 1 o'clock they heard the motor of the plane. Therese ran out of the door, and Tamar could see her waving her arm. She trembled. What would Louie do next? Would he be ready to return to Shadwell?

Wooden Ships

Points Out The Necessity Owing To Scarcity Of Steel

R. W. Mayhew, faithful representative of Victoria in Parliament, and an able industrialist, says the need for merchant shipping will force Canada to build wooden ships on this coast. There is, he says, not enough steel to build all the ships needed and the only answer is to use wood.

For months Mr. Mayhew has urged this policy upon Mr. Howe. But it has always been rejected on the ground that a steel ship is far better than a wooden ship.

This, no doubt, is true. Wooden ships are slow in convoys. They sometimes leak and spoil cargoes. Unless Diesel engines can be built for them they require so much space for steam engines that they are uneconomical. But against all these objections are two great facts—the Germans are sinking more steel ships than the Allies are building, and the building of steel ships is limited by the output of steel, which is not increasing—Vancouver Sun.

PINS MAKE GUNS

For steel and brass savings, Britain used 1,500,000,000 fewer pins last year than in 1940. In an order restricting the amount of steel to be used in hair pins and bobby pins in the United States it is expected to effect a saving of 16,000,000 pounds of steel. This is equivalent to 160,000 .50 calibre machine guns.

Pepper seeds used in the making of tabasco sauce are stored in oak casks to ferment and mellow for three years before being used.

A NATURAL CHANNEL

Beagle Channel is one of the wonders of the world. It stretches south of Tierra del Fuego—near the southern tip of South America—from east to west for a distance of 140 miles and is so straight one might think it was the work of a man. In but very few places it is more than three miles broad and all along its length the beautiful mountains fall sheer into the water without any foreshore, which makes them appear twice their 3,250 feet in height.

SMILE AWHILE

Drill Sergeant to married recruit—Button your coat!
Recruit (absently)—Yes, dear.

Dad—Well, you certainly look very clean, my boy.
Sonny—Sure. Ma just gave me a personally conducted bath.

"I wrote to the paper to find out how long cows should be milked."

"Just like short cows."

"Dave, Dave, baby's swallowed a nickel!"

"Oh, well, it'll be his birthday next week."

Bachelor—What's the difference, Mary, between a bar and a creation?

Husband (interrupting)—About $15.

Antiquarian—This vase is 2,000 years old. Be very careful in carrying it.

Moving Man—You can depend on me, professor; I'll be as careful of it as if it were new!

Mistress (engaging new maid)—And what is your religion?

Maid—Well, mother goes to church, and father goes to chapel. But me—I'm wireless.

Said the vicar's wife: "I hear that you want a vacuum cleaner in the parlor, Mrs. Potts."

"Yes, ma'am," replied Mrs. Potts, "but it's of no use to me. I ain't got a vacuum."

"Jack, dear," said the bride, "let us try to make the other people think we've been married a long time."

"All right, honey," came the reply, "but do you think you can carry both suitcases?"

Mr. Brown looked at the letter on his desk.

"We are very surprised," it read, "that the money we have demanded so often has not yet arrived."

Turning to his secretary, he dictated the reply:

"Dear Sirs—You do not need to be surprised. I have not sent you the money."

At The Close Of A Busy Day On The Farm

The above cartoon, drawn by an art student at the University of Oklahoma, is here reproduced for the first time in Canada through the courtesy of Prof. John H. ("Walter Camp") Casey of the Oklahoma school of journalism. Professor Casey has written an appropriate text for the drawing and dedicated it to the Missouri Press Association which celebrated its 75th anniversary last week at the annual journalism week at the University of Missouri of which he is an alumnus. His article follows:

THE FARM FAMILY GOES TO TOWN EVERY SATURDAY

Any Thursday or Friday evening, you'll find a scene like this in the Jones Family farm home. When the eggs have been counted, packed and set aside in a cool place, ready for market, each adult and adolescent member of the household "goes for" the STORE NEWS in the local newspaper in a big way.

Junior, age 16, wants the latest price and specifications on a new streamlined "bike." Sue's interest is a new "chaperon" . . . and she knows how to pronounce it the French way. Dad looks for the hardware listings and the "hen talkin'" of a new tractor some of late . . . while Mom goes for the drug store prices, women's wear and grocery items. Not a single advertised value escapes her thrifty, eagle eye.

Then, there's Grandpap, who needs some "tobacco" and maybe a new pair of overshoes. Bill, the hired hand, figures as how he'll be lookin' for a used car bargain. Josephine, age nine, and Archie, age seven, need some new toggery and some school supplies . . . but, Mom's looking after that while they scan the "funnies" together bolterbustler on the living room floor.

Just a typical farm family on any Thursday or Friday evening after the local newspaper has arrived . . . in studied preparation for the family's weekly shopping excursion to town Saturday.

That's what Professor Casey wrote, and it is just as true in Canada, with the present day exception on "rationed" articles.

Without the Home Town weekly, with its intimate news, it would be hard to know what is going on in the neighborhood—particularly now with all the rationing of tires, gas, etc. etc.

We thank Professor Casey for allowing us to publish this cartoon and the accompanying text.

ARMY TAILORS

The regimental "job" is the sergeant-tailor. His snip is to make such alterations to a non-commissioned soldier's clothing as are needed. He may do private work for officers, provided that, no expense to the public is incurred.

The Copernican theory was the conception that the sun, and not the earth is the centre of our planetary system.

There are 11 towns in America named Moscow.

FEW DARK NIGHTS

Completely dark nights in the polar regions are an exception. The Aurora Borealis in the Arctic, and the Aurora Australis in the Antarctic, constantly add their brilliant displays to the darkened sky, and the horizon usually is lighted by the hidden sun.

Emergency Change in Price Rates of Hog Grades

Like Easter bunnies, fashions in hogs change too. A little more weight and finish on the market hog is the order of the day. The recent improvement that the same price will be paid for B-3 hogs as lighter weights in the same grade category does not represent a radical change in the minds of Canadian Bacon Board officials. They have been urging heavier weights in order to make more certain that the 600,000,000 lb. British bacon contract will be fulfilled or exceeded. The change should be regarded as a temporary expedient rather than a permanent measure. The object is to get more pounds of bacon from the hogs marketed. Farmers are asked not to market a hog until it has reached at least 200 lbs. live weight. This should be good news for farmers. A little more finish can be put on their hogs with that extra barley they are planning to grow this year, without fear of a price discount on B-3 hogs weighing around 220 lbs. The change in price regulations does not apply to C-3 or D-3 grades.

There are six official carcass grades. These are "A," "B," "C," "D," "E" and Sows. "A's" are carcasses from top quality bacon hogs. The remaining grades decrease progressively in general quality.

Grade	Carcass Weight Range
	Class 1	Class 2	Class 3
	lbs.
"A"	140-170	170-185	185-195
"B"	135-175	125-134	176-185
"C"	135-175	120-134	176-185
"D"	135-175	120-134	176-185
"E"	Includes — unfinished, oily, rejected, condemned, physically injured, stags or ridings.
Sows	Includes all females that have raised one or more litters.

Page 59 of the Producers Grading Guide, published by The North-West Line Elevators Association, describes and indicates the weight ranges for the hog grades. If you should not have a copy of this booklet which, incidentally, outlines the official grade descriptions for all prairie farm products, your local line elevator grain buyer will gladly secure one for you. — Contributed by T. YOUR SCRAP METAL URGENTLY NEEDED!

This New Method makes Scrap Metal
Collection easy for you.

More scrap steel and iron is urgently needed for more ships, tanks, planes, guns and munitions. You are asked to do your part by turning in every available ounce of scrap metal from your farm.

In order to facilitate the systematic collection of scrap iron and steel in the three Prairie Provinces, the Wartime Salvage Limited, a Government Company, has completed arrangements with the following Western Canadian Elevators for collection and purchase of scrap iron and steel:

Alberta Wheat Pool. Saskatchewan Pool Elevators.
Manitoba Pool Elevators Ltd. United Grain Growers Limited.
North-West Line Elevator Association.

These Companies handle and purchase this material on behalf of the Government without cost to the Government, and without profit to themselves. Any monies received over and above the actual cost of handling will be donated to War Charities.

An Agent of one of the above named Elevator Companies has been appointed in your district as an official buyer on behalf of the Wartime Salvage Limited. The price to be paid by these Agents has been fixed by the Department of Munitions & Supply at $7.00 per net ton at the elevator, for all forms of scrap iron and steel excluding: (a) Sheet tin of any kind; (b) Automobile bodies and fenders; (c) Stovepipes; and (d) Wooden attachments.

This price applies at any designated point in the Prairie Provinces.

Your contribution to the war effort and to war charities is simplified by this arrangement and it will be more effective inasmuch as you now can take your scrap metal to the Elevator designated in your district and obtain a receipt for it from the Agent.

Should you desire to donate your scrap to the war effort, then such receipt voucher can be endorsed by you, payable to the Voluntary Salvage Committee in your community. The Voluntary Salvage Committee will use such money for war charitable purposes.

Your contribution of scrap iron and steel is urgently needed NOW. Dig out every available ounce of scrap on your farm and take it to the Elevator Agent nearest you without delay. Canadian war industry needs it badly.

Truck drivers must be sure to have permits to carry passengers, on their trips, obtained from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, J. Gordon Wilson, Service Representative, Truck Control of the Board, has given a memorandum to Superintendent R. I. Bird of the R.C.M.P., detailing the cases in which truck drivers are required to produce permits for passengers, in an increased effort to cut all unnecessary travel, and conserve equipment.

Any employer requiring the use of a truck to carry employees where no other means of transportation is available, such as to logging or construction camps, must apply to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Williamson Building, Edmonton, for a permit.

Plumbers, Painters others engaged in similar occupations must also obtain permits from the Board.

A farmer driving a truck on Sundays, or on any other business than that of the farm, must have a permit to carry passengers. On the other hand, a farmer does not require a permit to carry any members of his family, employees, or neighbors in his truck, when on business in connection with the farm work, or on necessary shopping trips to the nearest town on week days. In the Roll Call Institutions, restaurants and for Vouchers at the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, in order to obtain sugar by use of vouchers. Flax and Coarse Grains Production Needed as a War Measure

Farmers are urged by the Government to produce as much coarse grains and flaxseed as possible.

Coarse grains are required for the production of livestock and dairy products, and flaxseed is urgently needed for its oil content.
